ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for loop detection for improved branch prediction accuracy. In one embodiment, the method may comprise executing a branch instruction, updating a plurality of event counts corresponding to the branch instruction in response to its executing, determining a loop behavior status corresponding to the branch instruction in response to the event count updating, and promoting the branch instruction to a loop branch prediction type in response to the determination of loop behavior status.